To Whom It May Concern,

For the past year I have worked for the Three Languages Preschool as a lead and assistant teacher to ages 1-4 years old. I worked and collaborated with teachers of both Polish and Spanish. We worked as a team to develop the children in not only the languages but their social development and understanding of different cultures. As a teacher for several years, I felt that the school provided quality education and built strong relationships with the parents.

The school focuses importance on providing a safe and positive environment for not only the children but the teachers and staff as well. Within each age group we held monthly meetings to keep track of the children's progress and the overall development within each language. The lead teachers and management would get together each month to discuss the overall success of the children and ways we can improve. The meetings provided an opportunity for each teacher to express ideas and ways to teach through events, field trips, child performances, etc.

The school provided many extra activities throughout the week. There is a sports teacher who works with the students to build coordination, strength and teamwork. At the end of each class he awards the children who were outstanding with a medal. We have a yoga teacher who works with the children to provide flexibility, balance and calmness. A music teacher who brings in different music from around the world, with cultural dances, and instruments.

As a foreigner working in a Polish school I was very impressed with my working experience and overall hiring package. I was provided airfare for the start and finish of my contract. I was provided with a beautiful flat that had many comforts of home like a nice size kitchen and a bathtub. I had the option to take free Polish lessons and yoga lessons after work in the school. The school provides catering for the students as well as the teachers so the days I worked a full shift I was provided with a delicious meal. For me this was a great way to try many different Polish dishes at no cost to me. I had no problems asking for help to set up a bank account, getting my transportation card, etc.

Overall I had a wonderful experience working with such a diverse group of teachers in a beautiful city.

Sincerely,
